My motivation to stand for election:

I have always been passionate about equestrian sports, starting as an amateur rider and later on taking different roles at the Israeli Equestrian Federation contributing to and influencing the sport in different aspects. As a natural development of this path, I chose to become a national and international judge with the aim of improving the sport in Israel, and as far as I can contribute to the international ring. I believe in education, and that part of our role in the sport as officials is to educate – ourselves, athletes and their teams and the public to better understand the sport, the value of fair play and good horsemanship. I believe knowledge share is our strength and a tool we can use to improve ourselves as officials and with that the sport in general. This is also a topic I would like to promote in our club – finding the best way to share knowledge between different officials with different level of experience in different areas of the world. Seeking for a way to create knowledge transfer opportunities that young judges can pursue when starting their international way.

As a young judge by myself, I had the privilege of being supported by a more experienced judges along the way that have and still serve as my mentors in this world. For sure it had great impact on my development as a better official in our sport. I believe that if you have been given a chance you should pay it forward by extending from your knowledge to others e.g. by creating a knowledge transfer platform accessible for all club members.

My will is to contribute and influence the sport. Bringing in my professional experience as a project manager in large international projects, I would like to continue and support the development of the website and media tools, to try and establish a system of webinars, create a knowledge transfer platform through our website and promote mentoring of young officials by more experience officials in the club. We have all the possibilities and opportunities within our club, and we should maximise the use of them.

I see the IJOC as a great platform for young officials or ones coming from smaller countries to educate themselves and get a glimpse into the professional sport at the highest level. This is an enriching experience for them as individuals but moreover it helps them improve the sport in their countries as more knowledgeable and educated horse people.

For all the above reasons I would be grateful if you would consider my application to become an IJOC board member.

Sincerely yours,
Na'ama Agmon Licht
